Therefore, the case shall either deal with rules of imaginary countries to which the conventional international tax law rules have to be applied or with the rules of existing countries, in which case all relevant national provisions for this Competition have to be included in the case and the argumentation of the participants cannot be based on other national provisions of these countries.

The subject field of the e-mail shall clearly indicate that the message contains questions concerning the case of the Competition.

5.6. Requests for clarifications on the case should be limited to matters that would appear to have legal significance in the context of the case. The request shall include a short explanation justifying the importance of the clarification. Any request which does not contain such explanation shall be ignored.
